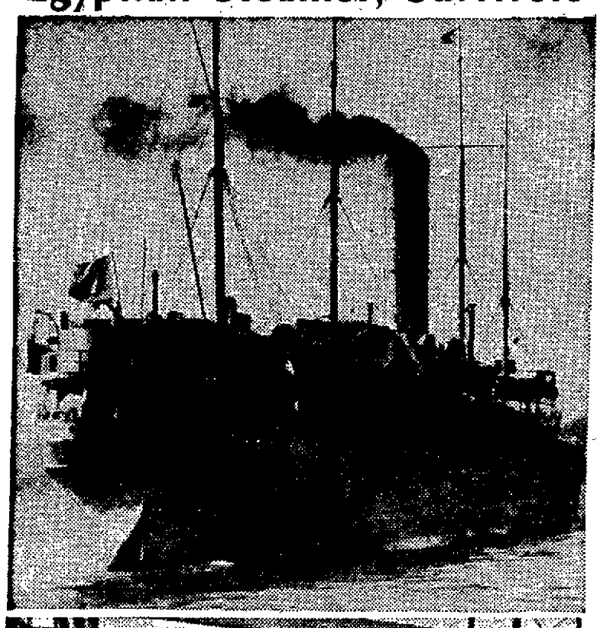
NAZIS REPORT ALL ABOARD SHIP SAFE; 'CHUTISTS INVADE CRETE

Egyptian Steamer, Survivors



At top, the Egyptian steamer Zamzam, sunk by a German raider, is shown as it left New York harbar March 20 on its ill-fated voyage. While it was at first feared that all aboard had been lost, Germany today announced that all passengers and crew members were "safe and well cared for" in German-occupied territory. Among those aboard the Zamzam were Rev. and Mrs. Curtis Morrill and their two children, of Ashland. Bottom picture shows Americans who volunteered for service with British ambulance service, and were enroute to Africa aboard the Zamzam.

Beer Retires as Senior High Principal

ROHLEDER TO BECOME NEW SCHOOL HEAD

Resignation of Principal Who Stays on as Instructor, To Bring 3 Other Shifts.

HARMONY TO APPLESEED

Beer Gives Up Post at Own Request; Board Names Other Teaching Staffs.

Jesse Beer, principal at Senior high school for 13 years, resigned last night, resulting in a revision of the Mansfield school administration which brought shifts in the principalships at four other schools.

Beer's resignation was sent to the board of education last night and the board, after accepting it, immediately re-employed him as a part-time instructor at the high school for the next school year.

Glenn Rohleder, principal of Johnny Appleseed junior high school, was named to succeed Beer as principal at Senior high school. Rohleder's promotion brought three other changes in the schools' staff of supervisors and left the principal's post vacant at the Western Avenue school.

In addition to his teaching duties, Beer will be placed in charge of a pupil guidance and counseling program which will be started in the junior and Senior high schools, Supt. W. L. Miller said. H. D. Bishop will continue as assistant principal at the high school.

The school board last night reemployed 224 principals, supervisors, and teachers, hired one new teacher, accepted the resignations of seven, and granted one leave-of-absence.

In the shift that followed Beer's transfer and Rohleder's promotion, G. W. Harmony was Kissel, Newman school principal, was named Bowman principal; and Principal W. A. Freeman of Western avenue school was assigned to Newman as principal. The changes were ordered last night by the board of education meeting in regular session.

Glider Planes Used By Nazis To Attack Isle

Berlin Says Not a Life Was Lost Aboard Zamzam; Churchill Says Germans Wore New Zealand Battle Dress For Invasion.

BULLETIN

CAIRO, Egypt — (AP) — American-made bombing planes have struck their first blow in the war in North Africa, having helped on May 18 to drive back an attempted Axis advance into Egypt from the Libyan border base at Fort Capuzzo.

(By Associated Press)

German glider-borne parachutist and plane-landed shock troops today invaded the Grecian Isle of Crete, government seat of King George II, and coincidentally the Germans reported they had sunk the S. S. Zamzam without loss of life.

It was the first reported time in history of war that gliders had been used as troop transport under combat conditions.

A fierce battle was reported still raging, and some German troop-carrying planes were said to have found landing fields on the mountainous island.

In London, Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the house of commons that the Germans had attacked Crete "in great strength" and that "a serious battle has begun and is developing."

Churchill said British, New Zealand and Greek troops were defending the island. He reported that 1,500 Germans disguised in New Zealand battle dress had landed in the initial assault.

Breaking a 36-hour silence which held the world in mystified suspense, authorized quarters in Berlin declared that the Egyptian steamer Zamzam, long overdue on a voyage to Africa with 138 Americans and 184 other persons aboard, was sunk without the loss of a single life.

The ship was first reported missing Sunday night, after it had been 26 days overdue.

The Germans said more than 300 passengers and crew members were "safe and well cared for in German-occupied territory."

The attack on Crete began during the night or early this morning, according to details reaching London.

The fourth largest Mediterranean island, Crete is also the site of a main British naval base.

On the Iraq war front, British troops striking from Habbaniyah air base were reported to have advanced 15 miles toward ancient Baghdad, the capital, in a march into the heart of the middle east oil kingdom.

The British said imperial forces

New Salary Plan for City Teachers OK'd

The single-salary plan of paying teachers, requested two months ago by the Mansfield Teachers' association, was approved last night for Mansfield schools by the board of education.

Under the plan which will become effective next fall, teachers in grade schools will earn the same pay as those in high schools if they have the same education and experience.

Although 145 teachers will receive pay increments ranging from $25 to $50 each beginning next September, total amount of teachers' salaries will show no increase next year, Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller told the board.

He said there will be an increase of about $700 in total salaries the second year, $2,000 the third year, $1,900 the fourth year, and $2,200 the fifth year. Teachers' salaries in Mansfield schools now total about $350,000 a year.

Minimum pay under the single-salary plan will be $1,000 a year if the teacher has an A.B. or B.S. degree and no teaching experience. With each year of teaching experience the salary would be boosted $50 until the maximum is reached. With an M.A. or M.S. degree the teacher would start at $1,100 a year.

Under the present pay plan, teachers whose salaries are below the maximum receive annual increments up to $100, but fewer of them benefit from the yearly pay increases, Miller explained. He also pointed out that at least five

SEARCH FOR MISSING PLANE

Cleveland Business Men Overdue On Flight From Washington.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— A search for two Cleveland business men long overdue on a flight from Washington continued today in an attempt to locate Daniel Stone, insurance executive, and Earl H. Waltz. Stone was piloting his four-place monoplane.

Six planes from the Cleveland area scanned the air routes between here and Washington without success.

The civil aeronautics authority broadcast a nine-state alarm and requested commercial pilots to keep a lookout for the missing plane.

Stone was regarded as an expert pilot with many hours in the air.

Mansfield's 'Hello Girls' Ready to Say 'Good Bye'

Phone Operators, Prepared to Give Up Jobs to New Dial System, Entertained at Farewell Banquet.

(Picture on Page 2)

Approximately 40 operators of the Mansfield Telephone company were saying "good bye" instead of their usual "hello" at their farewell banquet last night in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

By the end of the month, all but a few will have finished their work with the company, most of them after ten to 30 years' service.

The change will come with the completion of the conversion of the city's telephone system from semi-automatic to full dial operation. C. L. Lisle, maintenance superintendent, estimates that the work should be completed by the middle of next week.

Generous payments will be made to the operators as cancellation wages. The workers leaving will get a bonus of a full month's pay and proportionate vacation pay.

LeRoy Wittemire, manager of the company, said today that the company would retain as many workers wishing to remain as possible. Many, according to Wittemire, have expressed their wish to retire. Others will be kept on for toll, information or trouble service.

The manager said that it was impossible to determine how many operators would be needed after the conversion.

"Most of the dial work is still in an experimental stage with us," said Wittemire, "and we will have to discover how many workers are needed to maintain good service."

Several of the operators com-

FDR WRONG

President Confesses Advancing Thanksgiving Was Failure.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— President Roosevelt confessed today that his experiment of advancing Thanksgiving day one week has been a failure.

So far as the federal government is concerned, Mr. Roosevelt said, Thanksgiving again will be observed on its old date—the fourth Thursday in November—starting in 1942. It is too late to change the date this year and the holiday will be observed by the federal government and a large number of states on the third Thursday in November.

The president recalled that he set up the date one week to help the nation's merchants who complained that the proximity of Thanksgiving to Christmas hurt retail sales. Mr. Roosevelt reported that advancing the date has not helped retail sales volume.

PLANES COLLIDE

Four Pilots Die as Bombers Crash in Air, Explode.

RAINS, S. C. —(INS)— Army officials today inspected the wreckage of two light bomber planes which collided and exploded above Rains yesterday, bringing death to four flyers.

Victims of the accident were Second Lieut. Frank B. Ralston of Pittsburgh, Pa., Second Lieut. Allen J. Moore of Reno, Nev., Sergt. David L. Boyd, Frost, Texas, and Corp. Herbert O. Pruitt of Collinsville, Miss.

The planes were part of a flight of six bombers from the Savannah, Ga., air base to Langley field, Va. One of the ships fell on a deserted house. In advance of an official finding, witnesses to the collision said the ships appeared to have been thrown together by a sudden guest of wind.

FDR SETS UP HOME DEFENSE

Names La Guardia To Head New Effort in Which All Will Have Chance To Serve.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— President Roosevelt today created the office of civilian defense to mobilize full powers of civilians for home defense efforts and named Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York as its director.

La Guardia will retain his post as mayor of New York.

The OCD, which will give every American man, woman and child an opportunity to do his or her "bit" for the defense effort, will be organized under the office of emergency management on a strictly voluntary basis, the president said.

He disclosed that he signed the executive order setting up the new agency this morning. La Guardia will arrive in Washington tomorrow to get the program under way.

Under terms of the executive order, decentralization will be the operating basis of the new agency. The federal OCD agency will rec-

FAITH: Ashland Relatives Of Four 'Sure They Were Safe'

ASHLAND—"With people in the Lord's work, I feel sure that the Lord will take care of them."

That was the statement made today by a relative of four Ashland residents believed to have perished with the steamer Zamzam, when she was informed that Germans reported all passengers "safe and well cared for in German-occupied territory."

Rev. and Mrs. Curtis G. Morrill, their daughter, Elaine, 4, and son, John Stephen, 16 months, were believed to have perished along with 320 others persons on the steamer which was sunk somewhere between Pernambuco, Brazil and Cape Town, South Africa. The family was returning to a Church of the Brethren mission post in French Equatorial Africa after an 18-months furlough in Ashland.

Mrs. Maude Fickes, 239 East Liberty street, Mrs. Morrill's mother, and two sisters, Mrs. V. E. Nelson, 1228 Cottage street, and Mrs. Robert Suter, 306 Quarry street, grief-stricken at first by the news of the ship's sinking, were cheered by today's reports that the passengers were saved.

Mrs. Suter said that Mrs. Fickes had gone to work again today at

DEFENSE: French Minister Of Air Takes Charge In Syria

(By Associated Press)

VICHY, France—French Air Minister General Jean Marie Bergeret landed at Beirut last night to organize the defense of French-mandated Syria against British aerial bombardments, it was announced here today.

The announcement said the purpose of General Bergeret's trip was to "check up and perfect anti-aircraft defense measures of the Levant in accordance with the government's orders and in conjunction with High Commissioner Henri Dentz."

The air minister flew directly from North Africa after completing inspection tours there and at Dakar.

The trip was considered to have been as a result of recent British bombardments of Rayak and other Syrian airdromes following British charges that Syrian airfields were being used by German planes on the way to Iraq to join the Iraqis in the war against the British.

It was acknowledged yesterday that Syrian anti-aircraft batteries had fired on British planes over Syria.

France meanwhile indicated she was ready to fight to regain Afri-

Millers Ahead of Joneses and Smiths In Mansfield's 1941 City Directory

Score Stands at 260 for Leaders, 237 and 68 for Trailers.

Keeping up with the Joneses can no longer be considered a mark of getting ahead in the world, in Mansfield at least. Both the Joneses and Smiths have been considered the most common names in most cities for years. In Mansfield, it's the Millers.

The latter piled up 260 names in Mansfield's new 1941 city directory, being distributed this week. The Joneses, mythical titleholders, were left far behind, at least as far back as eighth place with only 68 to their credit, while the Smiths ran a close second with 237.

The new directory, bound in gray and black as usual, has 631 pages, 38 more than 1939's. Included with the regular listing of residents' names are the new house numbers, new dial telephone numbers, a rural mail route directory, business section, buyers' guide, and a streets directory.

It also lists the names of county and city officials, churches, schools, the names of the city's various societies, ward boundaries, clubs and parks.

According to the new directory, which was printed by the Burch Directory company of Akron, Mansfield now has 102.76 miles of streets, with 71.3 paved and 122.5 miles of sewers. Approximately 12,500,000 gallons of water are consumed daily.

First name in the new directory is that of John S. Abbe of 176 Vernum avenue. Last is Roselyne Zychick of 271 Rowland avenue.

Running ahead of the Joneses and behind the Millers are the Smiths with 237, Davises with 100, Williams 95, the Longs and Hoffmans with 83 each, and the Youngs with 79.

Many figures of America's history as well as the stage and screen are represented in name, at least, in the new directory. Among them are two Alexander Hamiltons, a Jay Gould, a Harry L. (Bing) Crosby, Kenny Baker, Joe Brown and Kate Smith.

Although there are three Fuhrers and six Wilhelms listed, Stalin and Mussolini failed to break into print.

BEER RETIRES AS PRINCIPAL AT SENIOR HIGH

Resigns To Accept Teaching Post; Rohleder Named as His Successor.

transferred from the Bowman school to principal of Johnny Appleseed junior high school, E. W. Kissel from the Newman school to principal of the Bowman school, and Principal W. A. Freeman from the Western Avenue school to the Newman school.

Principals who were reemployed to head the same schools again next year were:

H. J. Dotson, John Simpson junior high school; W. W. Blauser, West Fifth Street school; C. C. Secrist, Brinkerhoff school; R. R. Spetka, Bushnell school; Glen L. Robinson, Hedges school; G. W. Taylor, Prospect school; Dean Rex, Carpenter school, and C. A. Divelbiss, Woodland school.

The board's action in transferring Beer from principal to teacher followed the reading of a letter to the board by Supt. Miller.

In the letter, addressed to Miller, Beer requested the change in his status and asked the board to approve it. The superintendent said he had talked to Beer about the change for the past two years and learned that Beer wanted to be relieved of the responsibilities of heading the high school so he could devote his entire time to classroom and guidance work.

The change will result in a $1,600 annual reduction in salary for Beer. As teacher he will receive $2,100 a year, the same most high school teachers are paid.

The board last night passed a resolution commending Beer for his long and efficient service as principal of the high school. Supt. Miller praised him as "conscientious in all his actions, loyal to the administration and the policies which have been formulated, consistent and willing in his efforts to formulate and improve the school program."

The board also honored Mrs. Avice Reed by resolution for 36 years of service in the Mansfield school system. She was retired as a teacher in the commercial department at Senior high school and will devote her time to other interests.

Beer came to Senior high school as a teacher in 1914. He taught for four years and then went to the Cleveland schools where he taught for 10 years, returning as principal of the high school here in 1928. He has seen thousands of boys and girls graduate from the Senior high school and took a personal interest in all of them.

He is a graduate of the University of Chicago where he studied chemistry and received his Master's degree from Western Reserve university while he was teaching in Cleveland. He is 60 years old and president of the Ohio High School Principals' association.

Rohleder, his successor, has been in the Mansfield schools since 1915, coming here from Hayesville. He was a teacher at the Bowman school and then served as principal of the Western, Avenue, Carpenter, Newman, Hedges and Johnny Appleseed schools. He began teaching in 1009.

Supt. Miller made no recommendation for a successor to Principal Freeman at the Western Avenue school and said he did not know when a principal would be hired for that school.

Five women teachers who resigned to be married will not be replaced because of the declining enrollment of the city's grade schools, Miller said. Resigning because of marriage were Miss Mary Jane Curtiss, Miss Eureta Bumpus, Miss Harriet Roth, Miss Dorothea Hayden, and Miss Ruth Cole.

Earl Reichert, teacher in the Newman school, was granted a leave-of-absence extending through the first semester of next year to permit him to attend a ground training school for flying cadets. Three or four other men teachers are expected to be called for army service before the next school term, Miller told the board.

Miss Emily E. Shumate, Jackson, O., was employed to succeed Miss Elizabeth Milloy as a teacher in the school for the deaf. Miss Milloy resigned to take a job in Florida.

Also resigning was William Edwards, industrial arts teacher, who will take a job in an airplane plant in Columbus. No one was hired to replace Mrs. Reed or Edwards.

The board accepted the resignation of Robert W. Dunn as an assistant janitor. A replacement for him will not be employed immediately, it was said.

Teachers, supervisors and other employes who received renewal contracts last night were:

Supervisors — Miss Helen E. Hartmann, elementary vocal music; Miss Dora McLeod, primary department; Miss Florence Robison, art department; Sigurd Jorgensen, orchestras; A. LeMoine Derr, vocal music in high school; J. M. Holcombe, band, and Harry E. Mehock, director of athletics.

FDR SETS UP HOME DEFENSE

Names La Guardia To Head New Effort in Which All Will Have Chance To Serve.

ommend and guide, but actual administration will be centered in state councils of defense and in OCD regional offices. Mr. Roosevelt envisaged a regional system under which regional offices will be established in nine cities corresponding with the headquarters of the nine corps areas of the army.

Under the executive order, two chief divisions were set up in OCD:

1. A board for civilian protection, with La Guardia as chairman ex-officio presiding over representatives of the war, navy, justice, and federal security departments, representatives of the council of state governments, the American Municipal association, and the U. S. Conference of Mayors.

2. A volunteer participation committee, with La Guardia also chairman ex-officio, presiding over a membership of not more than 20 members.

La Guardia, as other officials of OCD, will serve without compensation. The president envisaged local cooperating units financing any training programs that might be entailed in the scheme. He said that financing involved in hiring personnel for the Washington OCD office and regional officers will be defrayed from his own personal emergency funds. He indicated, however, that he expects ultimately to ask congress for appropriations to meet these relatively minor costs and to reimburse the presidential emergency fund for any outlays made immediately.

The president said he was asking selective service officials compile a list of persons who are not likely to be called for training under selective service and who are eager to help on the civilian defense program. These men would serve as volunteers.

The executive order directed La Guardia, with the assistance of the board for civilian protection, to devise measures to "afford adequate protection of life and property in the event of emergency." He also was charged with sponsoring and carrying out programs calling for recruiting and training of civilian auxiliaries.

Although the executive order did not break down into specific categories the functions that would be necessary for civilian defense, officials said that in many respects the British plan for civil protection will be followed.

Boy, 7, Arrested For Driving Auto 65 Miles An Hour

CHICAGO —(INS)— A seven-year-old boy, his father and mother, and his cousin were ordered to appear in Chicago juvenile court today to explain how the youngster happened to be found driving the cousin's automobile at a 65-mile-an-hour clip in suburban Des Plaines.

The boy, Arthur Koester, Jr., was at the wheel of a car owned by his cousin, Dr. Louis Koester, when a truck driver curbed the machine. The truck driver said the car was speeding at 65 miles per hour and he thought it was driverless because Arthur's head did not show above the door window.

Riding with Arthur at the time was his five-year-old brother, Johnny. Johnny proudly told police that one time during the ride, "we went 80."

GERMANS CLAIM ALL SAVED IN ZAMZAM SINKING

Nazi Glider and Parachute Troops Invade Crete, Are Repulsed.

had crossed the Euphrates river and captured the village of Fallujah, 40 miles from Baghdad, with the aid of strong aerial support.

It was not disclosed whether the British were pushing on toward Baghdad itself, but it was declared, perhaps significantly, that only one physical obstruction lay ahead—the Tigris river.

Iraq's high command, making no mention of the British-claimed capture of Fallujah, said a series of British attacks on the western Iraq front had been repulsed with "considerable losses."

A Baghdad communique said that 30 British armored cars were destroyed by Axis-aided Iraq's air force, and that losses were inflicted on the British in the Basra sector, at the head of the Persian gulf. Two British gunboats which shelled Iraq defenses were said to have been driven off.

In the case of the S. S. Zamzam, the Germans implied that a Nazi surface raider had sunk the ship, a Berlin spokesman declaring:

"It is hardly to be assumed that a submarine could take hundreds of survivors aboard."

The spokesman said "it was an instance of the most humane and legal destruction of a vessel which was bringing valuable supplies to the enemy."

Among those aboard were 24 American ambulance drivers, en route to serve with the British and "Free French" forces in Africa, and more than 100 missionaries and their families.

In Vichy, the French government of Chief of State Philippe Petain, now actively co-operating with Germany, bluntly threatened a full-fledged fight to regain France's African colonies seized by Gen. Charles De Gaulle's "Free French" troops with British aid.

At the same time, the Vichy government suspended the granting of visas for Martinique, France's only route of direct communication with the Americas, as a result of "the uncertainty of the situation of French possessions in America."

Dispatches from Damascus, Syria, said the British were hitting Syrian airports in almost daily attacks—presumably attempting to halt German warplanes which the British say are flying to aid Iraq's Premier Rashid Ali Al Gailani, who had appealed to Hitler for help.

Ankara reports said the ranks of Syria's next-door neighbor, Iraq, were being swelled rapidly for the fight against Britain by volunteers from Soviet Russia, Afghanistan and Iran (Persia).

There were hints that France's German conquerors had a hand in the Vichy stand—demanding that France reestablish control of all her colonies, or even grant the reich colonial concessions, in return for a relaxing of the armistice terms.

British suggested France even might be persuaded to return to the reich the Togoland and Cameroon colonies Germany lost in the World war.

The official French information office declared the time has come to recapture territory lost to the De Gaullists—Gabon, the Cameroons and Chad, parts of French Equatorial Africa.

The information office said British planes had dropped over Syria messages written by "rebel French" military leaders in an effort to win the Levant territory away from Vichy control.

It was there that French anti-aircraft gunners fired back yesterday when the British flew over for repeat bombings of Syrian bases used by German planes striking on into the middle east conflict in Iraq.

The British, bolstering their forces in Iraq and Palestine as well as along the Egyptian-Libyan frontier, were expected to draw additional thousands of troops from Ethiopia, where the surrender of the Duke of Aosta and 7,000 Italians at Amba Alaji left only two real centers of Fascist resistance.

The British watched the developments in Syria closely and some observers said if an open rupture between Vichy and London resulted from the middle east tension the British and "Free French" probably would move at once to take over French Somaliland.

Berlin also regarded the middle east developments as especially significant. Nazi commentators declared that the shutting off of Britain's oil supplies from the rich Iraq fields, along with the toll of tankers taken by German submarines and bombers, seriously imperiled Britain's fuel supply.

These sources said Britain's oil-carrying fleet had lost 85,000 tons since May 1, with 15,000 more tons damaged severely.

It was intimated that the German submarines are saving their torpedoes for tankers in many cases—sometimes even at the expense of letting freighters carrying other supplies pass unattacked.

At Washington, Senator Barkley of Kentucky declared after a talk with President Roosevelt that the United States' lend-lease war equipment "seems to be reaching Great Britain satisfactorily." The administration leader in the senate said that, barring a change in that situation, it was unlikely the government would take any new "affirmative steps" to see that the goods are delivered.

The air war continued in its recent lull overnight. Neither British nor German raiders were reported to have undertaken any extensive attacks.

U. S. Asks Germany For Zamzam Details.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The state department today cabled American Charge d'Affairs Leland B. Morris at Berlin to request the German government for information concerning the whereabouts of American passengers taken off the Egyptian liner Zamzam.

The department took this action after receiving press reports telling of an official German government announcement that the ship had been sunk by a sea raider and that all persons aboard had been landed "somewhere in German occupied territory."

Pending receipt of official information the state department refused to make any comment on the incident although a spokesman made the unofficial observation that the German government presumably would release all the American passengers.

Apart from making arrangements with the German government for the return home of the Americans, the state department did not contemplate any other action in connection with the sinking of the ship.

On the basis of the Berlin announcement, officials felt that Germany had acted within the rules of international law in the sinking of the vessel. The German raider apparently had stopped the ship, examined it for contraband and having found that its cargo consisted of at least 50 per cent of contraband goods had removed the passengers safely before sinking the ship.

Churchill Again Delays Statement.

LONDON—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill told the house of commons today he was not in a position to make any statement on the Hess case and he was "not at all sure when I will be."

Thus he left the public and members of parliament as well to their guessing on the reasons for the May 10 flight to Scotland of Rudolf Hess, No. 3 Nazi.

Vyvyan Adams, conservative, had entered the questions of whether it was known if the Hess coming was "planned with the connivance and support of the German government" and whether the government would bear in mind the possibility that "the whole stunt may be the common or garden variety of plant."

Sacrifices That Are Worth It

SHOPPING is going to be simpler by autumn. Or it may be more difficult. It's all in the point of view.

The person who wants unusual things, odd models, imported stuff, is going to have a harder time finding them. But the shopper who doesn't want to spend too much time looking around will find things easier because there will be fewer materials and products from which to choose.

This tendency appears already in household equipment, clothing and automobiles. It is caused by the war's restriction of imports and the effect of increasing defense effort on production.

Americans need not pat themselves on the back too proudly for such sacrifices. They are very small deprivations compared with those others suffer and with what this nation may yet experience. They are also small in comparison with what we hope to gain by enduring them for a while. Prime Minister Menzies of Australia expresses his countrymen's philosophy about this as follows:

> "What matter if, when this war is over, we 'scratch gravel,' provided it is our own gravel? What matter if we find ourselves poor, provided our poverty is of that honest kind the sharing of which invokes the true and equal dignity of man? Better that those of us who still have the pioneer spirit come out of it bankrupt than as servants of a system for which humanity should find no room."

The Australians have decided that freedom is worth sacrificing for on a big scale.

Among the Pleasures of Spring

NO DOUBT a hiking club should do something strenuous occasionally, and a 40-mile hike must come in that class. On a recent fine Sunday 23 Ohioans set out on such a hike and most of them completed it, sooner or later. The first to finish was a man who did it in exactly 10 hours, without stopping for lunch, although he took time out in one place to change his shoes. A woman came in second. She walked the 40 miles in a little less than 11 hours.

It's great to have such stamina and muscles. And a good brisk hike for "them as likes it" is certainly a legitimate pastime. More people who take to the spring woods prefer frequent pauses to admire the flowers, listen to bird songs, or revert to their childhood by wading in brooks. They like to sit on a log in the sunshine and just bask. As for going without lunch, a glimpse of busy picnic areas in any park shows how the majority feels about that! Food, and plenty of it, in the best American tradition, is what they want.

Indians Make Goodwill Trip

AMERICANS of European stock may view with respect the good will tour to Mexico which is to be made by the graduating class of the Albuquerque Indian school. There are 43 boys and 30 girls in the group. Their president explains the trip as planned "so that we can better understand our cousins in Mexico, and they may learn something of us."

These young people have raised every penny of the $2,000 which their trip will cost. The boys worked at CCC camps and for the Indian Service. The girls promoted various money-raising projects such as establishing a canteen and selling lunches. On the trip they will cook their own meals and keep clothing repaired.

The sincerity of the plan and the willingness of the students themselves to make the sacrifices necessary to its fulfillment should go far toward insuring the trip's success. More pretentious expeditions may attract more attention but accomplish less.

The Celebrity's Usual Dinner

CELEBRITIES seem to have as good sense as the next person about food. The National Restaurant association made a survey to discover the menu preferences of famous Americans. It showed the favorite dinner was the familiar lay-out of shrimp cocktail, consomme, a small steak, head lettuce salad, a piece of pie and coffee. Vegetables were not stressed, but American women will add them anyhow and so will the typical restaurant menu.

Variants from steak were not numerous. Roast beef was the next favorite in order, with other meats too far behind to mention.

There are different opinions as to why this dinner is the favorite. Some say it is because it can be eaten without stopping their talk, and celebrities would rather talk than eat. Others think it is because of the brown juice of a steak —or the brown gravy of the roast beef.

It is a simple dinner to prepare, and it is nearly always good. It requires little heavy thought in selecting, which is an effort many persons seem to shrink from making.

"I DO!"

Why Farm Outlook's Brighter

—By JACK STINNETT

(Second of three articles on the farmer and national defense.)

WASHINGTON—Aside from the purely speculative possibilities of what will happen to Joe Farmer tomorrow as result of the war and national defense, there are three known factors which make the farm situation generally look brighter than it has in some years.

These are: (1) Greatly improved consumer demand in the United States and the assurance that this demand will go on increasing at least throughout the year; (2) a considerable increase in exports of certain farm products as a result of the lend-lease program; (3) the highest farm wage rates since January, 1931, when the depression knocked farming for a loop.

I'm going to take the third first. Joe Farmer cannot pay high wages unless he is making money or sees that he is going to make money. Yet, according to the agricultural marketing service of the Department of Agriculture, he paid wages in the first quarter of 1941 that were seven times the normal seasonal rise; 138 per cent of the 1910-14 average and 14 per cent above a year ago.

Some Farms Lack Hands.

These wage rates range all the way from less than $1 a day (without board) in Georgia and South Carolina to around $3.15 a day (without board) in Rhode Island and Connecticut. The farm labor situation still is spotted and it is almost impossible to generalize, but in some areas there is an acute shortage of farm labor—a far cry from a year or so ago when so many states were crying for federal aid to cope with the excessive drifts of farm labor.

Exactly what the lend-lease program is doing to the farmer can't be put down in black and red, because it's a "military secret."

A department of agriculture executive told me "just what foods are being bought for or by the democracies and the time of transfer will never be revealed by the department of agriculture."

But let's look at the record. Great Britain, shortly after the lend-lease bill was passed, made known to this country not only what military supplies would be needed but what foodstuffs would be needed. In the weeks since then the need for farm products has become more acute.

The Red Cross is making demands also. Just what these demands are is not known and exactly how they are being answered is not known. But there are some significant figures.

First, it is known that Great Britain particularly is in need of fats, poultry products and canned goods. (They have promised also to take some tobacco, but this cannot be really important until the amount they will take is known.)

The department of agriculture is doing two things. It is placing a "floor" under hogs at $9 a 100 pounds. (Chicago basis); under dairy products (on the basis of 31 cents a pound for butter, also Chicago); live chickens at 15 cents a pound and eggs at 22 cents a dozen. It promises continuation of the corn loan program through this year and next; to make loan corn available to producers at the loan rate plus certain carrying charges; to set no marketing quotas for the 1941 crop; and to allow producers in the commercial corn producing areas to produce their usual acreage. That solves the feed problem and with this assurance of reasonable feed prices and a "floor" on sales prices, the farmer can pretty well see his way clear for at least the next two years.

Full Steam on the Farm.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard is asking a 6 per cent increase in egg production in the next 15 months; a 15 per cent increase in chicks this fall and next spring; a 6 to 8 per cent increase in dairy products, principally cheese, evaporated milk and dried skim milk; a 50 per cent increase in tomatoes for canning; increases in acreage of peas, corn and snap beans; a 35 per cent increase in production of dry edible beans of the white variety; a vast increase in pork, both through feeding and breeding of sows, and immediate increase in beef cattle slaughter to meet the present demand for meats.

(Next: Domestic consumer demand for farm products and how Secretary of Agriculture Wickard views the future.)

Listen World!

A Man Laughed

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

RUMMAGING through some old notes, I came upon the story of the wireless operator of the steamer Grontoft, who died, laughing, on March 2, 1922. And thought how deeply we need the echo of that laugh today.

All day the sea had moved in ugly darkening coils around the trapped ship . . . tightening, mounting . . . slobbering its rage. Then, with the dusk, hell broke loose. The beast lashed out. Where there had been water there was a bellowing gulf. Instead of air a driven, blinding mass of spindrift, buffeting the men who dared to face it, scarring their faces like acid. And a wind that swooped like a Stuka diver. Death in that wind . . . death in that sucking sea.

Yet, hour after hour, that wireless operator sat tight in his little cage, sending out his call, that sharp, dramatic S. O. S. which all ships know, that fierce and urgent clamor to the comrades of the deep. But there was no answer. Then, presently hearing the death rattle of the timbers and the growing thunder, it must have come to him that there would be no more answers, ever. For, suddenly, he altered the tempo of those tapped-out appeals and began to laugh!

Men aren't supposed to laugh when Death comes near and touches them on the shoulder. They are supposed to be heroically silent, or, to quote the classics, Levity is decidedly de trop on death beds. But here was one man who dared to take the next adventure with a grin.

Out, into that insanity of lurching death, his fingers ticked their final, mocking challenge.

"A terrible night for us lads at sea," he called, then answered himself through the shrieking silence, "Ha! Ha!"

A pause, and then, "The steward is making ham sandwiches for the life boats now. The old wagon lists like a busted teapot. Looks like we're going on a picnic. No weather to be out without an umbrella."

Silence again. Those who listened, speeding on their way to his rescue, unable to reach him through air waves gone berserk, thought he had gone. But once again the signals came, steadily, riding the storm.

"WE - ARE SINKING - NOW. DECKS AWASH . . . . BOATS SMASHED . . . GOING DOWN STERN FIRST. CAN'T HOLD OUT MUCH LONGER . . . WHERE'S MY HAT? GOT TO GO TO THIS . . . PARTY. SORRY COULDN'T WAIT, OLD MAN. IN BIG HURRY . . . SKOAL! SKO—"

There was no more.

Somewhere a Man had gone on his long trail, laughing.

I'm thinking of that wireless operator these days as the storm rises about our own ship. There are things—worry and fear and hate—which crush the soul more terribly than roaring waters can crush the flesh. And so we go out each day with hearts more heavy, eyes more filled with dread.

DON'T DO IT!

Whatever we may face in the days to come, whatever sacrifice or test, loss or suffering, let's face it as he faced that final challenge, with a laugh! Crying:

"WHERE'S MY HAT? GOT TO GO TO THIS PARTY! SO LONG, OLD MAN! S-K-O-A-L!"

Let's Look Around

Lincoln's Village Being Rebuilt

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

NEW SALEM, Ill.—When a Boy Scout in Springfield, Ill., is making ready to pass his final tests as a first class Scout he is required to take a hike out here to New Salem and back—much as Abraham Lincoln might have walked that 35-mile stretch in 1831 when he was one of the New Salem boys clerking in the village store.

New Salem village, a half hour's drive northwest from Springfield, has become part of a state park and has already been restored by the state of Illinois to an appearance quite like that of Lincoln's time, with its log cabin homes of a scant hundred inhabitants, the postoffice, blacksmith shop, carding mill, tavern, and the several stores in which Lincoln worked.

On the day we visited New Salem scores of school children and their teachers were being shown about by guides who explained the use to which each of the reconstructed log structures had been put, and the Lincoln associations that were closely interlocked with the village history.

It was to New Salem that 22-year-old Abraham Lincoln came in 1831 and here he remained until 1837, when he was admitted to the bar and went to Springfield to start in the practice of law.

It was from May 7, 1833, until May 30, 1836, that Lincoln served as New Salem's postmaster, the final date marking discontinuance of the postoffice in favor of Petersburg, two miles to the north, which was regarded as a more promising village.

BUT many things happened after that discouraging experience in 1836, and so it came about that on Feb. 12, 1940, James A. Farley, then postmaster general, journeyed to this small village and ceremoniously established another postoffice—this time under the noteworthy name of "Lincoln's New Salem"—which is the postmark borne by all letters and souvenir cards mailed at the reconstructed postoffice here.

"And the apostrophe belongs in the name of this postoffice," explained Postmaster John W. Gellerman, as he proudly exhibited the old style cancelling stamp which imprints "LINCOLN'S NEW SALEM, ILL." inside the circle, with the date showing A. M. or P. M. mailing.

WORK in the final stages of reconstructing New Salem is now centering on replacement of the John Offut grist mill, which was built of logs and used to grind either wheat or corn.

The original mill was built in 1828 by James Rutledge, father of Lincoln's early sweetheart, Ann, and legend around here is to the effect that Lincoln met Ann at a time when he was engaged in hunting for several pigs that escaped from a flatboat that stranded on the mill dam in 1830.

Restoration of the old mill is now taking form and it is expected that the work will be completed within another couple of months.

It was in the early days of his New Salem residence that Lincoln described himself as "a poor, friendless youth, working on a flatboat at ten dollars a month" and it was also at about this time that he gained the inspiration of acquaintanceship with Ann Rutledge, so there may be some actual fact in the pig-hunting incident—at least we should ask Ernest Wesson about it.

PLEASANT as it may be to browse around in these scenes of Lincoln's youth and manhood, there is more to "seeing America first" than taking a look at any one place—so let's be on our way.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Background of French Leaders Key to 'Surrender' to Germany

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The French capitulation to Hitler was no news to U. S. Ambassador Admiral Leahy. He had warned what was coming for some time. France's capitulation was news, however, to some of the kid-glove diplomats of the state department who kept on sending food ships with the idea France could be bought off.

To understand fully the hopelessness of the French situation, it is necessary to remember that Marshal Petain belongs to the old school which favored the French royalty and disliked everything connected with the French Revolution. Petain never liked England, because England was always setting an example to the French people of how a parliamentary system really could be made to work.

Petain and his school — which included Weygand — were dead set against the parliamentary system for any country, and felt that if the British system collapsed, then they would have no trouble ditching the democratic form of government in France.

In addition, Petain was a pessimist. He did not think France could win last June; just as he did not think France could win in March of 1918. His order issued on March 24, 1918, has now been published; and if it had been carried out it would have meant French surrender to Germany. Fortunately for the outcome to the last war, Marshal Foch stepped in at this moment and stopped the German army at the gates of Amiens.

Don't Understand U. S.

There is still another reason why Petain and those around him are not anxious to see the British win. British victory means an investigation of the French general staff during the past decade, and the reasons for French defeat at a time when France was supposed to have the finest army in the world.

Finally, those in power inside the French government seem to be hopelessly uninformed regarding the situation in the United States. For instance, Admiral Darlan remarked to a member of the French embassy, just before he left Vichy for Washington one month ago: "One of the most important developments of recent months is the increasing rivalry between Great Britain and the United States."

And Marshal Weygand remarked to an American diplomat rather recently: "America is a mercantile nation. She never will be interested in helping Great Britain."

Apparently the leaders of France had no idea that there is even a remote possibility that the United States might actively support Britain.

Latin American Nazis.

One confidential problem the Nelson Rockefeller committee is trying to iron out is created by Nazi agents who take advantage of American business firms in Latin America. Without meaning to do so, U. S. firms have indirectly helped finance the spreading of subversive influence and anti - American propaganda — through the tricks of German sales concerns.

For years many U. S. exporters have allowed independent German firms to distribute their goods in Latin America. They did this because the Germans had lived in South America longer, had better contacts, were better salesmen. In recent times, however, the State Department discovered that some German firms were using their American business connections to undermine the United States.

Here is how it works: An American firm will spend a large amount of money for advertising in local South American newspapers. But the advertising is placed through the local sales connections of that firm, in most cases German. And the Germans use that advertising to high-pressure the local paper into carrying Hitler's speeches, the Nazi DNB news reports, and other pro-German propaganda.

For some months now, the Rockefeller Committee on Cultural Relations, in co-operation with the state and commerce departments, has been trying to stop this. A confidential list of Nazi firms was prepared, and most American firms, when warned of the situation, arranged for new non-Axis distributors.

However, some companies have demurred on the ground that a change would mean loss of business. General Motors, for instance, at first refused to sever arrangements with certain German firms which were successfully distributing its automobiles in Latin America.

The matter went up to James D. Mooney, vice president of General Motors, also to Alfred P. Sloan, chairman of the board. But nothing happened. Word came back that General Motors saw no reason to make a change in its Latin American sales setup unless there were a declaration of war or breaking of diplomatic relations with Germany.

Finally, however, Sumner Welles, hard-hitting Under Secretary of State, had a session with Graeme Howard, vice president of General Motors in charge of overseas operations, in which there was some plain talking. In the end, General Motors agreed to cut loose its German sales connections in Latin America.

Note—Meanwhile the production, as distinguished from the sales end of General Motors in the U. S. has done a magnificent defense job in completing four machine gun factories at Flint and Saginaw, Mich., Syracuse, N. Y., and Dayton, O., last month. The plants weren't scheduled for completion until next December. William Knudsen, former production genius of GM, is the man behind this.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—"The bright news today, friends," said the little Midas, meaning Billy Rose, as he slouched in a polka dot dressing gown and lovingly fingered a stack of coarse money tabs from his Diamond Horseshoe—"the bright news today, friends, is that our old pal Good Time Charlie is back. I haven't seen him since that black Thursday in October, 1929, when Mr. Hoover's chicken jumped out of the pot and the two cars rolled away from the garage."

Charlie, to Billy, means a spender, a guy who is free with his money. The tabs he fingered were the evidence of trade at his center of nostalgic backdrops of yesterday, the Horseshoe. One of those tabs revealed that a party of 12 had spent $408. Another party of seven had cheerfully paid $116. Four others had come through with $84.

"Not everybody goes above the minimum," said Billy, "but when I look at the till these days I can't help thinking of a song I wrote back in '29, the song with the chorus that went like this, 'Clap hands, here comes Charlie. . . . Clap hands, Good Time Charlie. . . . Clap hands, here comes Charlie now.' Me, I got blisters from clapping."

The reason for this turn of affairs, this new opulence? "Increased employment and defense," says Billy. "Especially defense. Instead of toadying to the tired business man we now entertain the tired defense worker."

"Even so," observed the modest squire of Beekman Place, who thinks anything in the shape of a house with less than seventeen rooms is merely squalor—"even so, these days are a far cry from the old days, the real Good Time Charlie days, and it's a good thing.

"But you can't blame a guy for being sentimental. In the speakeasy days I often saw Waxy Gordon spend a thousand in an hour. Arnold Rothstein thought nothing of flinging away $500. They thought they were great guys when they bought champagne for everybody in the house, including the waiters.

"One night I saw a couple of racketeers run up a fast tab of $1,400. When they found out the waiter had kited the check $300 they chuckled and gave him an extra $300 for a tip. 'We took a sucker for $42,000 today, one of them said, 'so why shouldn't you get your cut.'

"Those were the days when Larry Fay wouldn't even nod to a customer spending under $200, unless the customer carried a pistol. Those were also the days when a club could open and pay expenses on the first night. I actually saw this happen with the Silver Slipper, a place seating only 400 people. It took in $30,000 on opening night—$75 a head."

Those days are gone, and a good thing, although this doesn't mean that some bizarre spending can't be observed around the street. "Why," said Billy Rose—"Why only the other night one of my girls came in waving a $1,000 bill. I'm not lying to you. It was a real $1,000 bill. When I saw it I knew for certain that Charlie, old Good Time Charlie, was back."

A Farmer's Diary

'...and the Evening Star'

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ON Greenwood hill at twilight, brown bats that sleep deep in the sandstone caves beneath, flit like shadows across our path.

The ponderous night owl hidden in the shelter of a tree calls out until the echo rebounds from a distant hill. At intervals of ten minutes or so we hear that solitary deep voice—then all the landscape holds a deeper silence. Rude droning junebugs fly lumberingly across the trail, too close our faces.

Sitting in silence—my wife and I—upon a fallen chestnut trunk, we heard the faint far-off murmur of children's voices across the valley. A church bell rang in the village behind the hill. The tone was sweet and restful and tells of unmolested worship—a simple faith in things unseen. We felt, there in the silence of the giant evergreens, that we had found a place of worship, too. "The groves were God's first temples" and never will there be a place more sacred or more fitting.

The south wind brought hints of lilac, wild crab and yellow spice bush. So delicately it bore these odors down upon us that it seemed we were beneath the flowering trees.

Far down the rugged mossy slopes we heard the Clearfork flow. It sang and rippled in the shallows. We could see the breakers whiten in the dusk and small patches of tiny bubbles float like rafts upon the more even surface just above.

Deep in the slower moving basin, the evening star was reflected. Blue sky and delicately woven clouds were mirrored there. Tall spruce and pine, oaks and maples along the rocky slope hung with tops inverted in the clear flowing element. We saw the shadows of the western wooded hill thrown far across the eastern meadow—made by that soft pale amber glow that comes long after sunset.

A hungry fish flopped up into the air then down into the stream again, making concentric rings upon the water. A restless sparrow not thirty feet away upon a bush sang to us—and to all the world—incessantly.

Across the narrow highway, flat upon some branch, a whippoorwill began his strange continuous cries. Crickets near our feet plied their instruments of song.

Greenwood Hill may be wherever trees grow high upon the bank of a clear flowing stream—wherever there is twilight, blue sky, and evening stars.

CHAPTER XXXIII

All this giving way to frazzled nerves would never do, Raye finally decided. She forced herself to stop crying, got up from her desk and quickly dried her eyes.

She dragged herself to the dressing room, powdered, rouged, ran a comb lightly through her short golden curls; but her brain was in a swirl, circling around and around too fast for the solving of the tricky problems now confronting her.

If only Rex were here! A definite salary was something to cling to—perhaps to borrow on, but she dreaded to request it by letter. She couldn't bring herself to ask her old friends for a loan. She suspected that the majority of the girls would find a way to sidestep loans. Too many of them would relish the idea of taking the erstwhile proud Raye Stone down a peg or two. The men might react differently, but this was out of the question.

"Oh, dear," she sighed, surveying her drawn face in a mirror. "Money is so awfully important—when you haven't any!"

She remained late in the office, trying to type some of Rex's new novel. But after critical appraisal of her smeared, corrected work, she wadded the pages into a hard ball and flung them into the waste basket. It would be an insult to offer Rex such slovenly manuscript.

So she wrote a sympathetic letter to poor Aunt Susan and enclosed a five-dollar bill. It probably wouldn't hurt her to go without lunches for a week. As she felt now, she never would be hungry again.

Cleaning women at last arrived with their mops, brooms and pails and drove Raye out of the office.

For dinner, she had cheese sandwiches and tea in a small shop and made a pretense of enjoying them, while discouraging admiring glances of strange men. Her pale face was startlingly arresting between a black felt hat looped with blue ribbon and her plain black suit with blue and white striped blouse; but whether she excited sympathy or the spirit of adventure was quite immaterial to her tonight. She was only marking time until she would be allowed to see Bill.

She bought an armful of fragrant pink roses in a florist's shop, then boarded a street car that seemed to lag as no other car had lagged before.

She arrived at the hospital early in the evening. But not early enough. Rosalind Grinner and her father were already with Bill.

"Ah—Raye!" She thought she detected an edge of disappointment in Bill's tone. Of course, he would rather be alone with her and she had come at the wrong time for that. "So glad to see you."

His hazel eyes were bright in his heavily bandaged face. She wanted to close them with kisses, or at least feel his hand in hers. But both his hands were wound with yards of white bandage.

"Thanks for the roses, Raye. Are you all right"

"Yes, Bill—thanks to you," she said, trying to send her love to him with her quick smile. "I'm quite whole."

"Pretty bad fire, was it?" said Mr. Grinner conversationally.

A nurse came in now with a vase for the roses Raye had laid on the dresser. Rosalind snatched them up, stuck them carelessly in the vase and set them on a table outside Bill's line of vision.

"It was a horrible fire," Raye said unsteadily. 'Bill saved my life, you know."

"Nonsense! Anybody can break a window," Bill put in. "Raye and I have broken a lot of windows in our time."

The little private joke brought a tinkling laugh from Raye.

But she quickly sobered and inquired solicitously, "Have you suffered much, Bill?"

"Not so much. I can take it—the suffering. Guess I'm lucky to be alive."

"Is there anything I can—can do for you?"

"Thank you—no. Not now."

She imagined that she caught his meaning. If they could get rid of the Grinners, or if she'd come back when the Grinners weren't here, he'd have a great deal for her to do. Love him—would be his biggest request. But oh, so easy for her to grant!

"The poor, poor dear—he's been so wonderful—so brave," sweetly drawled Rosalind.

Raye was annoyed. But this wasn't the time nor place to spurt out at the silly Rosalind. If Rosalind thought this was the way to get her man, what an awakening she was headed for!

Raye moved toward the door. She wanted to get away as quickly as possible. She felt that Bill also was finding the situation somewhat trying. Rosalind's disgusting possessiveness, her presumptiousness in bringing her father, was so absurdly trotted out!

"I—I just dropped in to see how you were, Bill," Raye told him quickly, trusting he would understand.

The tender light in his eyes assured her that he did and she smiled almost too politely at Rosalind and her father. If Rosalind thought she had even a chance with Bill, it was funny!

Raye hurried out of the room but Rosalind was close on her heels.

She linked an arm affectionately through Raye's and walked along the corridor with her.

"Isn't it awful" she sighed but it sounded nearly jubilant. "Papa and I intend to do everything possible for dear Bill. We're getting a night nurse for him, too. I can't bear to think of his suffering alone for a single minute."

Raye glanced at Rosalind in astonishment. She dared to ask, "But does Bill—will he care to be so—so obligated to you, Rosalind?"

"Why not?" flung back Rosalind, tossing her shoulder-length brown curls. "Under the circumstances, how could papa and I do less?"

Raye abruptly covered her frown with a wry smile.

"Circumstances?" she inquired, holding her breath.

"Why—yes," came airily from Rosalind.

She flung up her left hand on which gleamed a big white diamond solitaire. "Isn't my ring a beauty?"

A sudden wave of giddiness seized Raye. The lovely stone flashed under the electric light like the brutal eye of some treacherous beast. For a moment she felt clawed and beaten and half dead.

Then she resolutely squared her shoulders, hoping to conceal from Rosalind the misery in her heart.

Everything cleared in her racing mind now. Bitterly she felt that she had the key to it all. What a blind fool she had been. What Bill Anderson had said about not being able to marry her, she remembered ironically enough. He had advised her to marry money, hadn't he? And—he had been planning to do exactly that himself!

Bill Anderson, she saw, had decided to grasp opportunity in a big way. He was going to settle himself in a nice easy berth with the wealthy Grinner family—and pooh-pooh love and all slush like that. He had already strangled every bit of love he had had for her, calling it a snare and a delusion.

Raye was filled with anger. But she held it in check with firm determination.

She said quickly, her voice pitched a little too high, "It's—it's a beautiful stone. I wish you every happiness, Ros."

She left Rosalind abruptly, regretting she hadn't wings to whisk herself out of sight quicker than her feet could carry her.

But upon reaching the cool damp darkness of the street, a sudden weariness assailed her and she wondered how she could ever get back to her apartment. She felt so utterly empty and spent.

Oh, why did she have to go on living? What did she have to live for—now?

She went back over Bill's declarations of love, word for word, trying to find insincerity in them. But she could not. She had never thought of him as an actor—but it seemed as if he were actually an excellent one. At any rate, he had completely fooled her. And she had always congratulated herself upon knowing her way around! Of all things!

But she felt like an empty shell of herself, wanted to scream out a protest and knew there was absolutely nothing she could do to remedy matters. She would have to take this slap in the face from Bill Anderson with good grace—and pretend to like it!

A 6 o'clock dinner will be served by the charter members for the new members. Mrs. John Seifert and Mrs. Harry Zellner will assist the hostess.

HOROSCOPE

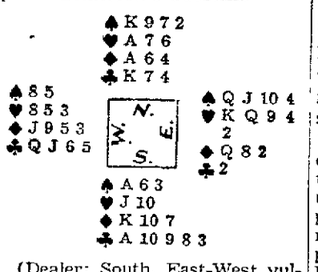
For Wednesday, May 21.

While there may be a certain degree of enterprise and initiative in a business way on this day, yet these may be beset or irked by petty difficulties or trifling perplexities making social, domestic or sentimental urges more exciting. In fact the accent may be upon these private lures which should offer more harmony and real enjoyment. These too are under auguries for small anxieties or disagreements, calling for amiability and discretion. With all kinds of discords and frustrations cleverly managed a surprising gain may be shown.

Those whose birthday it is may feel moderate energy and ambition to engage in some enterprise or new venture, but may be discouraged by a chain of thwarting, perplexing or disappointing developments. This will make it easy to seek compensations in social, domestic, artistic or emotional indulgences, and these happy relaxations are of paramount importance. They may also be subject to inharmony, defeat or obstruction, unless real affability and discretion be exercised. Withal there may be some surprising benefits and gains.

A child born on this day should have energy, initiative and constructive ability, with artistic learnings, yet its emotional urges may lure it from the practical to the social and romantic way of life.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable).

With the diamond 3 led against South's 3-No Trumps, how should this hand be played to lure the defenders into all possible mistakes, in an effort to take the maximum number of tricks?

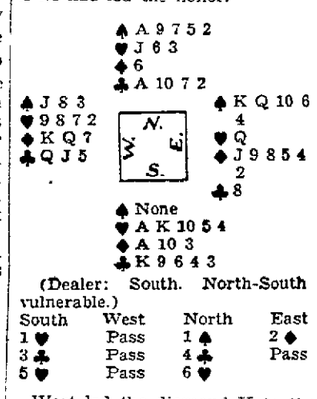
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

LEAD A SMALL CARD

Except when it is necessary to preserve the lead in the hand which has it, because of a dearth of re-entries, a declarer should usually lead a small card for a finesse instead of a low honor. The reason is that the low honor may be covered by the first defender by an intermediate honor which he would have had to use anyway on the small card because it was a singleton. When that situation exists, leading the small card leaves the declarer one honor richer at the end of the trick than if he had led the honor.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♦
3 ♣	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
5 ♥	Pass	6 ♥

West led the diamond K to the A, and South decided promptly to ruff out the other diamond losers. He ruffed the diamond 3 with the heard 3 and led the heart J for a trump finesse. East, of course, covered it with the Q, and the A won. This obviously set up a trick for West's 9. Then the diamond 10 was ruffed and the spade A laid down for a club discard. South then played to his club K, laid down the heart K, played back to the club A, then led a third club to West's Q. The latter returned a spade, which South ruffed with the heart 4. He laid down the heart 10, leaving West with the high heart 9. His last club was led, West ruffing for the setting trick, and the spade return was ruffed by South's heart 5.

Correct play would have made this contract. After winning the first diamond and ruffing the next, the spade A should have been played for a diamond discard, then the heart 6 led. East would have had to cover, and the A would have won. The heart 4 to the J, a club to the K, the heart K and 10 would have settled West's trumps. Two high clubs and a third to West would have brought a ruffed spade return, and clubs would have completed the contract.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Then," I told Mary reassuringly, "everything is all right." I moved toward the telephone, and put my hand upon the receiver.

"You don't object to my father looking through that miscellaneous box, do you?" I asked, although I was sure of the answer.

"Heavens! no," she assured me.

"Then please stay right here while I telephone him," I told her, and forthwith put in a call for my father's individual telephone at the farm.

It was but a few seconds before I heard his voice, and I knew he had been waiting up for my call.

Madge Talks to Her Father.

"Have you seen Z?" he asked impatiently, referring to Mary in the way upon which we already had agreed.

"Yes, she is right here," I answered.

"What does she say?" he demanded, and I noted the suppressed impatience in his voice.

"She cannot remember what the hidden message means," I told him, careful—though I really did not know why—not to use the word "code."

"But she must remember it," he said, even as I have done.

"It's no use, father," I said with decision. "I've tried. But," I hurried my words together so that he could not interrupt me, "there is a book she wants from the farm. Could you possibly get it to us before morning? Isn't there some man you could get to rush in with it?"

"What?" My father's usually controlled voice was perilously like a bellow at this apparently ridiculous request. Then understanding apparently flashed upon him, for he said quietly:

"I understand. Describe the book and tell me where to find it; quickly, please."

"In the extreme northwest corner of the attic you will find a pile of pasteboard cartons," I told him, visioning the attic I personally see to keeping in order.

"Yes, yes," he said, almost before I had finished, "what about them?"

"The lowest of the pile," I went on imperturbably, for I know my father's little ways as well as I do those of my husband and deal with them accordingly, "is marked, 'Mary, Miscellaneous.'"

"And I am to open that box, I suppose," he broke in again. "And for what kind of book am I to look?"

"A small black notebook, about three inches by five," I told him. "Mary and I are very sure there is only one black notebook in the box, although there are plenty of colored ones. But if there should be more than one, take out any notebook that is black."

"Very well," he said. "I will go directly to the attic and find the book. Then I shall see about getting it to you. Please stay near the telephone. I shall want to talk to you when I have found the book. Good-bye."

He hung up so swiftly that I knew my answering "Good-bye," was addressed only to the receiver. As I hung it up, Mary was close at my elbow.

"What does he say?" she asked, and I repeated my father's part of the conversation to her. She turned toward the door as I finished.

"It'll take him a few seconds to get into that box, find the book and get downstairs again," she said. "I think I'll run over to the party for a second, and pep 'em up with the promise that you'll soon be over."

"Very well," I said, "but hurry back. I'll want you here when Father telephones."

"I'll be right back," she promised, scurrying out through the door.

As the door closed behind Mary, I thought I heard another window or door opening, the sound coming from the balcony, which had neither window nor door except the ones opening from my suite.

GETS PROBATION SECOND TIME

The three-year probation of Robert Dudte, 19, of 298 West Sixth street, had been continued today by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston.

Dudte, who was placed on probation in March, 1940, by Judge Huston, was cited for violating his probation after authorities learned that he traveled east several weeks ago with another youth who allegedly had burglarized a filling station here.

The court did not find sufficient evidence to convict Dudte and the probation continued on the condition of good behavior and if he supports his wife.

You Can't Print That!

(A compendium of tales that can't be told with names, because they're too true to print. If you find in them any resemblance to actual characters, living or dead, you've probably guessed right!)

CURT is a musician who used to make about $35 a week filling in time on the radio with his piano selections. And during those lean times he used to patronize a tea room which was owned in part by Elsa, a beautiful black-haired, black-eyed maiden. He fell in love with her, and wanted to marry her, but she said no. Later, perhaps. She was not sure she loved him.

Dorothy Kilgallen

Things got better for Curt, and when he became a musician of some importance and organized his own orchestra, he asked Elsa (who needed a job now because her partner in the tea room deserted her) to work for him as his secretary. He also asked her, again to marry him, and again she refused.

The employer-secretary relationship continued for some time and during this period Curt's name became known to every music-lover in the country. And finally it happened. He met Pauline, the great contralto. He accompanied her on her radio program and she became so impressed by his musicianship she insisted on having him play every time she sang on the air.

It was love, all right. Curt knew it and Pauline knew it, and worst of all, Elsa knew it. And when she realized she might lose the man she could have married any time she wanted to a strange thing happened to her heart. She found she was in love with him.

Curt remembered his offer of marriage to Elsa, but now he wanted to marry Pauline. He consulted a psychiatrist. Then he gave Elsa some money, said farewell to her, and married Pauline.

Things went from bad to worse for the beautiful Elsa. She drifted from job to job, starving sometimes, but always proud. She finally got a job cooking in a girls' summer camp and when the camp closed last fall they let her stay there because she had no other place to go.

She almost froze to death, and when she was strong enough she chopped her own wood. She sells cake now, to make a few pennies; her hair is snow white.

Curt is much too successful now to give Elsa a second thought. But Elsa has not forgotten him. She still dreams of the life she might have had with him—and if she could afford a radio, she would listen every week to the music of the man she might have married, if only she had known she was in love.

Jeanine was the most famous of the American showgirls who were glorified in Monte Carlo. She had escapades with maharajahs. She has a collection of jewels with real histories.

Jeanine found herself in Paris at the beginning of the present war. The one man she really cared for had been fighting against the totalitarian forces and was in a concentration camp.

Suddenly, headlines appeared saying that Jeanine had "gone Nazi"—that she was having a whirl with a high ranking Nazi leader. Rumors spread that the shops of furriers were confiscated—that she took her pick of the sables, and then the shops were un-confiscated. The same happened to Paris jewelers, if you believed the reports. Some of the rumors even said Jeanine had married the Nazi leader.

Suddenly, she came back to America. She was desperately glad to be home. She was not married.

And the man she really loved was out of the concentration camp.

(But you can't print that. These things only happen in stories by E. Phillips Oppenheim. You think!

You've heard the song a thousand times. Here's how it happened: Arthur Friedman and Harold Rome wanted a topical tune for their revue.

"News," said Friedman, "is made by people. Top news today is FDR. But we can't use him—Kaufman and Hart did it in 'I'd Rather Be Right.'"

So they didn't write a song then. They went to Florida. They were loafing on the porch of their cottage near the beach when the postman came, handed Rome a letter. Friedman watched him read it, saw him smile. "From my kid sister," said Rome.

"Ah, a little child," thought Friedman. "A song about a name, bringing in a child. Franklin D. Roosevelt Brown . . . " he said aloud.

"No, Smith . . . Jones! Franklin D. Roosevelt Jones."

HOUSE SEEKS ARMY'S VIEWS ON DRAFT ACT

War Department To Be Asked To Report on Proposed Changes In Law.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The war department will be asked for a "full report of its views" on all proposed amendments to the draft act before congress acts on any of them, it was announced in the house today.

Rep. May (D., Ky.) chairman of the house military affairs committee, said that he was compiling a list of the suggested changes for submission to the department and predicted there would be no congressional action on the matter for at least several weeks.

Among the more important changes on which the department will be asked to express itself are:

To lower the minimum age from 21 to 18; to take in boys just out of school allowing them to select the year they will serve; to make the act permanent; to lower the top age from 35 down to 30, 25, or 21; to eliminate the 900,000 limitation on the number of men and take in all boys of a certain age; to legislate for uniform deferments for married men; and to give the president power to order blanket determents of the higher age groups.

The last proposal is the only one so far officially requested by selective service headquarters. In response to questions, the headquarters announced today that this was not devised to defer any older men already drafted, but only to exempt older men who have not yet been inducted.

May said that he expected to send the list to the department this week and anticipated receiving its report in two or three weeks after that. When this is received, he added, it will be referred to a subcommittee headed by Rep. Faddis D., Pa.) for a thorough study.

"I still don't see why they need any additional legislation at this time, but I want to find out just what the department does want," May declared.

"They're going to register another million 21-year-old boys on July 1 and they can induct them any way they want.

"If they don't like the way deferments are going, and if they want to defer older men, they can do it by so instructing the local draft boards. I don't see why they don't do this instead of coming around here and asking for changes in the law."

TAX PAYMENTS TOTAL $684,888

Collection 105.3 Per Cent of Year's Charge, Report From Treasurer Shows.

Richland county property owners paid a total of $684,888 in real estate and special assessment taxes for the first half of this year, or 105.3 per cent of the tax charge, County Treasurer John E. Kolb said today.

Payment of current taxes was well above the average, but delinquent levies which were paid during the collection period added $37,632 to the total, the treasurer said. Delinquencies accounted for the excess payments.

Receipts for the half-year period left $818,423 due for the rest of the year. The treasurer said, however, that he does not expect to collect all of that by the end of 1941.. The figure includes delinquencies.

The second half collection of real estate and special assessment levies will begin July 1 and will continue until Aug. 20, Kolb said. Statements probably will be mailed in June, he added.

With this year's collection periods moved up a little, the treasurer hopes to have the collections back on schedule within a few years. Collections formerly began in June and December, but property reappraisals threw them off schedule.

SCHOOL BOARD ADDS COURSES IN SALES AND OFFICE WORK

Addition of distributive education classes in sales and office work at Senior high school to qualify the school for federal funds to pay a part of an instructor's salary was voted last night by the Mansfield board of education.

The new program will permit high school pupils to gain experience by working in stores and offices in downtown Mansfield.

W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools, recommended the change which will require pupils in the courses to have an average of 15 hours a week throughout the year of actual experience on the job. The entire time could be worked out during the summer months.

On that basis, the federal government will reimburse the school board for two-thirds of the instructor's salary for the time he devotes to the special classes.

J. C. Stout, teacher at Senior high school, has been conducting distributive classes with about 40 pupils enrolled, Miller said. One instructor would give three periods a day to the instruction in selling and office work.

The plan will be carried out with the cooperation of the Retail Merchants association, the superintendent said last night. Pupils enrolled in the classes will work after school, on Saturdays, or during the summer in stores and offices to gain their actual experience in salesmanship and commercial courses.

Laff-a-Day

"How about us doing 'em when we get back from the movies, Sarg?"

Boy Scout Area Commissioner C. I. Kimmel has disclosed another accomplishment in his bag of tricks, according to Floyd Dent, area executive. At the recent Scout convention held in Washington, D. C., Kimmel was called upon to give the Johnny Appleseed Area report. Dressed as a chef, in the proverbial white hat and apron, Kimmel, extracted from a huge make-believe pie, the area report in a fashion which "brought down the house" at the convention.

Mansfield Braves ball players were conspicuous by their absence from Mansfield streets and stores today. But they weren't in hiding because of their 8 to 5 defeat last night at Fostoria, their first setback of the season. The team's bus broke down on the way home from Fostoria, and the players didn't reach their hotel until 6 a. m. So "spent the day in the hay."

All because of a train wreck near Chicago, Marjorie Young (the former Marjorie Willis of Mansfield, wife of the foreign news correspondent James R. Young) came to her home town yesterday only to stay at a hotel. She had been in Columbia, Mo., where both she and her husband spoke at the University of Missouri journalism week. After the talks Young headed for another lecture engagement and his wife started back for their home in New York by way of Chicago and Mansfield. She was to arrive here late Sunday for a visit with her father, J. Edgar Willis. But, because of a wreck, her train was re-routed and she reached Mansfield at 5 a. m. Monday. She stayed at a hotel to avoid disturbing family or friends so early in the morning. "Of course, I didn't mind that," she said. "My problem is that we took a plane from New York. Our four-year-old son saw us take off. And now I've got to find him a present that looks like a star or piece of cloud or something else that could reasonably have been picked up en route!"

Although the Community Fund campaign closed nearly two weeks ago, C. N. Shultz, major of the professional division, kept right on working to meet his quota. At the close of the drive he was still $56 short of his quota and he continued his efforts to see prospects that had been away from home or otherwise unavailable during the campaign. Today he had wound up his part of the drive by exceeding his quota, $2,975, by $11, reporting a total of $2,986.

AFL WORKERS SET TO BUCK CIO PICKETS

12,000 Start Back-To-Work Movement at Yards Closed By Machinists.

(By United Press)

SAN FRANCISCO — Twelve-thousand members of 17 unions affiliated with the bay cities (AFL) metal trades council today began a back-to-work movement in 11 shipyards closed 11 days by a strike of 1,700 AFL and CIO machinists.

They were scheduled to go through the machinists' picket lines and reopen two yards today. They will return to their jobs in seven more yards tomorrow. The council today began negotiations for a wage-hour contract with the other two plants, owned by Bethlehem Steel company.

The machinists meeting tonight, and, after hearing a "patriotic" appeal from Gov. Culbert Olson, vote on his proposal to renounce their demands and go back to work on orders for $500,000,000 (M) worth of warships and cargo vessels.

Responsible quarters predicted the machinists would reject Olson's proposal. Most of them, it was said, believe they are "indispensable" and can get jobs elsewhere at their terms, $1.15 an hour and double-time for overtime. It also was reported that the machinists would be satisfied for the navy to reopen the yards, because the navy yard at Mare Island pays $1.12 an hour, time-and-a-half for overtime, gives 26 days vacation with pay, 15 days sick leave and holidays with pay, and the strikers believe they would get the same terms.

It was questionable whether the affiliated unions could operate the yards without the machinists. Al Wynn, spokesman for the council, said they could. Spokesmen for the strikers and neutral quarters said it was impossible to build ships without machinists.

Wynn said the unions, in returning to work, "are only trying to live up to their (stabilization) contract. I believe the shipyards can resume operations with the machinists. At least we will be doing our part."

The AFL machinists, who comprise 1,100 of the strikers, are members of the council, but they did not ratify the stabilization agreement, which forbade walkouts and established a $1.12 an hour wage scale and time-and-a-half for overtime.

Bethlehem Steel's plants did not participate in the agreement, and will not be included in the council's back-to work movement until they sign a contract, it was said. Bethlehem holds more than half of the defense contracts.

Fiery Tim Mangan, young but veteran catcher of the Mansfield Braves, is beginning to wonder what luckless star was hovering overhead the night he was born.

Plenty of promise has Timothy as he squats behind that platter with mask and mitt and all the rest of his protective paraphernalia, but the promise he shows of future success has been offset thus far by the promise of setbacks of which Lady Luck has so consistently reminded him.

Last year a broken leg benched him for more than half the season at a time when he was going good behind that dish. And Sunday a foul tip ripped the flesh from beside the fingernail on the middle finger of his heaving hand.

After a trip to the medico, Tim reported: "I'll be back in there inside a week, and I can pinch hit right now.

"It was the same finger I bunged up in training season, so it hurt that much worse, but give me a chance at some clutch cloutin' and I'll be in there swingin'."

* * *

So heave a sigh for luckless Tim,
For what that apple did to him.
But just you wait until the Mangan
Steps in and gives that ball a bangin'.

Loud and long is the caterwaul in Massillon these days. Yes sir, the Tiger wail rends the town, and the weeping wall has not been found that could soak up all the tears those Tiger fans are shedding.

Big Horace Gillom, the one and only, is going, going, and soon he'll be gone. Gone to Ohio State where he'll bother Massillon's football, basketball and track opponents no longer.

Massillon may cheer, this June-time, at the graduation of its senior class, but the cheers for Senior Gillom will be touched with a note of woe.

"There goes our football team," the Massillons may well say when Gillom gets his parchment. The six-foot, two-inch, 195-pound All-Ohio end of the past two autumns, never played in a losing football game in three years of competition.

A picture I'll have of him always is big Gillom reaching high in the sky and grabbing footballs out of the air like a monkey catching peanuts, then waving the pellet at the boys as his long striding legs carried him away from the frantic clutches of diving tacklers

Mighty Massillon, you couldn't still 'em,
While they had that Horace Gillom.

Indians Depend On Mel

Two Defeats By Athletics Worry Loop Leaders.

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — The Cleveland Indians called on Mel Harder, the American league's leading pitcher, today to snap their two-game losing streak and salvage one victory from the Philadelphia series.

Sporting four decisions without a defeat, Harder has rested since beating the Yankees last Wednesday. The Athletics picked Irving (Bump) Hadley to keep their Indian sign on the Redskins.

Connie Mack's boys pounded Al Milnar and Clint Brown for 12 hits yesterday to down Cleveland, 5 to 4. The Indians got to Lester McCrabb for nine blows, including a home run by Milnar, but couldn't connect in the pinches.

Sam Chapman and Frank Hayes were the big guns in the victors' attack, the former getting a double and two singles and the stocky catcher two doubles and two singles.

* * *

The winning run came in the eighth inning when the Athletics routed Milnar. Dick Siebert doubled and Chapman singled him to third before Brown was rushed in from the bullpen. He snuffed out the rally, but not until Hayes had plated the deciding tally with a hard smash that was too hot for Ken Keltner to handle.

The Indians move to Washington tomorrow with Bob Feller slated to pitch.

First-place jams in the National league are as common as traffic tie-ups in Times Square, but the senior circuit has one now that only President Ford Frick can untagle.

The Brooklyn Dodgers have lost two games in a row at Chicago and yesterday slipped out of the percentage lead although remaining half a contest ahead of the St. Louis Cardinals on won-lost reckoning.

However, the Dodgers complicated this otherwise commonplace mixup by protesting both games on the grounds that the Cubs had 26 men on their squad, one over the limit that went into effect May 15.

* * *

The player in question is Outfielder Charley Gilbert, whom Brooklyn traded to the Cubs in the Billy Herman deal. He was playing under option at Montreal and the deal provided that the International league club turn him over to the Cubs June 1.

In the meantime he sprained an ankle and went to Philadelphia to get repairs. He never has been any closer to Chicago that he is right now—roughly 800 miles.

President Frick says it may be a week before he can make a ruling.

If the Cubs, who moved into first division yesterday, don't cut off a man, and the protest is upheld a week from now, other managers may start hollering too. On the other hand the Dodgers will have to show why and how Gilbert can be included on the Cubs' roster 10 days before they themselves were due to deliver him.

* * *

Even if Brooklyn wins the protest it won't erase the humiliation of yesterday's 14-1 walloping.

Dennis Galehouse, who had pitched a one-hit shutout his last time out, held the New York Yankees to four safeties as the St. Louis Browns forged a 5-1 victory.

Young John Gorsica pitched four-hit ball for the Detroit Tigers to beat the Boston Red Sox, 4-2, missing a shutout in the seventh when Ted Williams homered with one on. It was Detroit's fifth straight win and kept the American league champs right on the heels of the second-place Chicago White Sox, who whipped Washington, 8-2.

The day's best pitching duel was in the National league where Pittsburgh ended the New York Giants' four-game winning streak, 2-1. Max Butcher of the Pirates allowed only four hits while old Carl Hubbell gave up six.

The Cincinnati Reds ripped off 14 hits to beat the Boston Braves, 7-3 behind Johnny Vander Meer, with Catcher Ernie Lombardi distinguishing himself by throwing out four runners at second. There were seven errors.

State High School Sports Titles Decided This Week

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Hundreds of Ohio schoolboy athletes limbered up today for the state track meet, the baseball, tennis and golf tournaments Friday and Saturday in Columbus.

Preliminary tests in the annual scholastic battle for the state crowns will start Friday afternoon in the four sports with the finals set for Saturday morning and afternoon.

Major attraction will be the bid of Cleveland East Tech to capture its third straight state class A track diadem.

The wing-footed Scarabs sped to the state championship in 1939 by edging Columbus North by one-sixth of a point and repeated last year by a comfortable margin of 51 points to the 22½ scored by second-place Columbus North.

Coach Ivan Greene's runners were tied last week in the northeastern Ohio class A district meet by a new high school track power—Cleveland east.

Coached by George Arnold, former Ohio State track star, the Blue Bombers matched the East Tech total of 41 points to divide the winning honors in one of the state's cinder strongholds.

East will not represent too much of a threat to the state supremacy of their neighborhood rivals since East Tech scored four first places in the five events in which they qualified men for the state meet compared with the lone first place registered by East.

East Tech will be favored to mark up first places at Columbus in the same four events in which they scored the bulk of their district points, the high and low hurdles, the broad jump and the 880-yard relay.

The Scarabs' ace timber topper, Harrison Dillard, won the district high hurdles in 14.8 and captured the lows in 25.5. Tech's winning 880-yard relay was clocked in 1:32 3 Dillard's time in the highs equalled the state record in the event. George Clark won the broad jump for Tech with a leap of 23 feet 3½ inches.

Regarded as the most serious threats to stop East Tech are Springfield, Toledo DeVilbiss, Toledo Scott, Columbus Central, Marietta and Cincinnati Western Hills.

Paced by their all-around performer, Elmer Bean, Springfield captured three major relay meets this spring—the Newark, Ohio Wesleyan and Miami relay carnivals Springfield walked away from the field in the southwestern class A meet with a 73-point total.

Xenia O. S. & S. O Home, 1940 class B state winner, had little trouble outclassing the southwestern competition at Springfield with the staggerig total of 72½ points.

Poland, Belpre, Oxford-Stewart, Clyde and Chagrin showed much strength in winning their district meets but not enough to remove the "favorite" stamp from the Xenia speedsters.

Don Shock of Dayton Fairmont will return to the Ohio State university golf course to defend his 1940 state golf crown which he won with a 36-hole total of 154.

The Dayton high school luminary fired a 73 to win the southwestern district title at Springfield. Dayton Fairview won the team championship with a 332 total.

Toledo DeVilbiss, 1940 state team winner, breezed through the northwestern district play at Toledo with a creditable 313. The standout on the Devilbiss squad, Harvey Jones, won individual honors with a 74

Second last year to Toledo DeVilbiss in the state meet. Hamilton Public qualified for this year's playoff by taking the southwestern district competition at Cincinnati with a 320 total. The individual title went to John Zoller of Hamilton Public who carded a 73.

Mansfield won the northwestern district at Bucyrus with 348 and Canton McKinley was the winner at the northeastern district play at Canton with 335.

New singles and doubles champions will be crowned in the tennis competition. Joe Pickering of Youngstown Rayen, who was on the Rayen state doubles championship entry last year, won the northeastern district singles title at Akron but the doubles crown went to the Akron Garfield team of Bob Atsaroff and Dick Barbaris. The 1940 singles winner, Chambers of Cincinnati Walnut Hills, has been graduated.

Considered one of the favorites to win the state tennis honors is Charles Sampson of Waverly who won the southwestern district title at Athens with a 6-4, 7-5 win over Bill Friel of Portsmouth.

* * *

Allen Bunis of University school at Cincinnati won the southwestern district title. The Cincinnati Hughes doubles entry of Norman Apple and Charles Thomas came out on top.

The singles title at the southwestern meet at Springfield went to Wayne Rittenhouse of Dayton Fairview. The Fairview entry won the doubles.

Clinton Sevenson of Norwalk was the singles winner at the northwestern play at Bowling Green. Sylvania won the doubles match over Toledo DeVilbiss.

The other district tennis finals were postponed because of rain. Winners in the delayed district meets were to be decided yesterday and today.

The baseball program suffered the worst setback because of the bad weather. The southwestern district tourney at Cincinnati was the only tournament that was completed. Cincinnati Withrow won the class A title and Reading came through in the class B.

Columbus North, 1940 champions in class A, won the central district at Columbus. New Regal won the class B tourney in the northwestern district play at Tiffin and Alliance was the class A winner in the northeastern district The other tourneys were to be completed today.

PLAY FOR FUN

Mansfield golfers went to Galion yesterday for a regularly scheduled match but found no Galion golfers on hand to do battle with niblick and spade. So they played a practice round and came home. Thursday they go to Columbus for a practice round, and return Friday for the first 18 holes of the state tournament at 1 p. m. Saturday they play the final 18 at 9 a. m. Unless Nick Komjenovich's bad hip, which gave him a 105-card at Bucyrus, mends, he will be replaced by Hagerty.

Gasco Riflemen Win N. C. O. Shoot

Mansfield Gasco club won the first of four North Central Ohio rifle tournaments Sunday at the Gasco range with a 1974 team total on first five men. Galion was second with 1966, and Ashland had 1957.

L. C. Arntz of Gasco missed only one target to capture the singles crowd with 399 out of 400, but the best shooting of the day was turned in by William Schadd and E. Clark of Ashland in winning the 50-meter doubles title with 398, each missing only one target.

Arntz and Lee Church were second in doubles with 397.

Next Saturday and Sunday most riflemen from this area will compete in the Zeppelin N. R. A. Class B shoot at Akron and on July 19-20 they'll participate in the regional shoot of the national rifle matches at Mt Gilead

STAYS AT BEULAH AS LUCK RUNS RIGHT

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Jackie Flinchum, 18-year-old Miamisburg, O., jockey, doesn't believe in "changing seats when luck is running good."

And Jackie, who experienced a run of luck—all of it bad—during the winter racing season at Hialeah and Oaklawn, thinks Dame Fortune is smiling at him at last. So he'll stay at Beulah Park for the remaining 13 days of the meeting instead of packing off to Detroit for the opening there tomorrow.

He doesn't want to break the spell that has given him 21 winners in the first 12 days of the Beulah session. "I'm going too good to leave here," says the lad who won the apprentice championship at Hialeah in 1939.

Thompson-Musto Battle To Draw

LOS ANGELES — (AP)—Turkey Thompson of Los Angeles and Tony Musto of Chicago slammed and tugged at each other for 10 rounds last night. When the milling was over, neither was any closer to a championship match with Heavyweight Joe Louis.

* * *

Referee Abe Roth, who seldom calls them that way, ruled the match a draw. Many ringsiders thought 21-year-old Turkey had a shade the better of it because of his sharper hitting—when he could find Musto to hit.

* * *

The best bout from the standpoint of the crowd of 14,000 in Wrigley Field was the technical knockout scored by Jackie Wilson over Baby Arizmendi in the eighth. They were billed for the state welterweight title. Wilson weighed 137½ and Arizmendi 139¾.

Musto weighed 200½ and Thompson 187½.

Secreet Repeats Victory

Left Hook to Body Again Slows Down Beauford.

SAMMY SECREET of Pittsburgh is still a deep secret to Mansfield's Beauford Glover, and the 5-1 punching victory which Secreet recently posted over the ex-king of the Cleveland Golden Gloves lighties was repeated last night in their six-round return bout at Cleveland.

* * *

Owning much too much experience for Glover, in addition to a crashing left hook to the body, Secreet got to Glover early and won as he pleased.

* * *

That didn't keep Glover from continually flashing that right hand at Sammy's chin, and he scored with that weapon on more than one occasion.

Secreet weighed 149 and Glover 147.

Youngstown's Lenny (Boom Boom) Mancini isn't quite good enough for the world champion yet, but he definitely belongs in the lightweight title class.

The 22-year old Ohioan dropped a split decision to Sammy Angott of Louisville, Ky., the National Boxing association's king, in a spirited battle that had 2,601 fans still shouting as they left Cleveland's public hall.

Two judges voted for the champion, with Referee Joe Sedley casting his ballot for Mancini. The Associated Press score sheet gave Angott five rounds and Lenny three, calling two even.

* * *

At 138, Sammy had a one-pound edge in weight His title claims were not at stake.

The Ohioan's weaving, bobbing style of fighting from a crouch bothered Angott, and the Louisville scrapper altered his usual left-handed attack to sail into Mancini with sharp right uppercuts.

Lenny's showing earned him a crack at Bob Montgomery, the Philadelphia slugger who recently beat Lew Jenkins.

Other results: Billy Miller, 130 of Alliance, O., beat Max Schindler, 132 of Lorain, O., in five.

STAR OF CARLISLE INDIAN TEAM DIES

SALEM, Ore. —(AP)— Wauseeka, 55, one of the prime football tricksters of Glenn "Pop" Warner's Carlyle Indians, died of a heart attack last night.

White men knew him as Emil Hauser. Friends credited him with first pulling the hidden ball trick—slipping the ball under his jersey and walking goalward while frantic opponents chased other Indians pretending to have the ball.

Starred In Big Ten Meet

Copping both the 120-yard high hurdle event and the 220-yard lows, Bob Wright of Ohio State was an outstanding individual star in the Western conference track and field meet at Minneapolis. Indiana won the team title, with Michigan second.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service)—Mid-western papers report that a full-fledged campaign is on to oust every athletic head at the University of Illinois, including Bob Zuppke . . . Tommy Harmon won't play football with the pros, but he's not averse to playing against 'em—if the fee is fat enough . . . Joe Cronin, tearing a page from Bill Terry's book, has barred the press from the clubhouse after the game. But no one is fretting. If the Sox keep going like they did last week, the scribes will see all they want of them on the field.

POOR OLD BOBO

The fans are asking if and when
Buck Newsom's going to ride again;
It seems the Tigers' favorite son
So far this year but two has won,
Which may be why the gossips say
He blushes when he draws his pay.

Kansas City Reaches Top

Association Standings Look Familiar Again.

(By Associated Press)

The Columbus Redbirds and Louisville Colonels received quite a play from the baseball prophets before the American association race got under way, but the standings look strangely familiar today.

Billy Meyer's Kansas City club, although its 1940 pitching staff and infield were riddled by promotion to the big leagues, is up there in first place again, riding the crest by a game and a half.

The Blues hooked up in a vicious 13-inning struggle with second-place Minneapolis last night. Lloyd Christopher's home run gave the Blues a 7 to 6 edge.

Bill Sayles pitched Louisville to a 5 to 3 victory over Columbus boosting the Colonels into third place a half game behind Minneapolis.

Indianapolis moved up within a half game of fifth place by defeating Toledo, 6 to 5, after the Hens had knocked ace pitcher Ray Starr out of the box in the third with a five-run outburst.

St. Paul outscored Milwaukee, 14 to 11, squelching a last inning rally after the Brewers had pushed across three runs.

HURLER CALMS DOWN AFTER BAD START

Emmer's wildness in the first two innings gave First Baptist a big lead in the game with St. Luke's at Johns park, but he held them safe and yielded only six hits, while his teammates were hammering Davis safely in all but the second inning. St. Luke's won out 13 to 8.

St. Luke's hitting and base-running was better, while the Baptists played a loose game at times.

Brown and Lace led St. Luke's in the hitting, while Prion got half of the Baptists' hits. Score:

In other Church league games last evening St. Johns blanked St Matthew's 22-0, and First Lutheran walloped Congregational 16-9.

TIMID BUYERS HALT ACTIVITY IN STOCK MART

Wall Street Dealings Marked By Indecisive Movement In Prices.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK —(AP)— Indecisive price movements again dominated dealings in today's stock market.

While offerings never were urgent in any department, bidding was timid from the start and, near the second hour, many leaders were unchanged. Activity was negligible throughout.

Brokers interpreted business developments as moderately bullish, but offsetting influences were found in the tax program which the treasury has presented to congress. Wage boost demands of the railway brotherhoods, coupled with labor disputes elsewhere, also served as a restraining factor.

Investors derived some comfort from the statement of federal reserve member banks in 101 cities disclosing commercial, industrial and agricultural loans for the week ended May 14 increased $36,000,000 to $5,604,000,000, a new peak for the move.

TOLD ASHLAND RELATIVES SAFE

Kin of Missionary's Family, on Board Zamzam, 'Sure They Were Safe.'

the Faultless Rubber company because she would "feel better if she were busy." The mother stayed at her work yesterday when she was informed of the ship's sinking.

"It may take a lot of patience and waiting on our part," said Mrs. Suter, "but we're sure that everything will be all right."

Mrs. Suter and Mrs. Nelson said that the family expected to receive word from the U. S. state department as soon as the German government released a list of the Zamzam's passengers. Both believed that the Germans would supply the list as soon as possible "in order to create a good impression in the United States."

Mrs. Morrill was the former Bertha Grinner of Ashland. Both she and her husband were graduates of Ashland college. Mrs. Morrill graduated from the School of Nursing at the Ashland Samaritan hospital in 1928 and later taught at Sandusky. The Morrills acted as preacher and medical missionary at Bekoro, 700 miles inland in Ubangui-Shari, French equatorial Africa. They had been there for four years before returning to Ashland on furlough.

All members of the family felt sure that because the Morrills were in missionary work that they would be protected.

German dispatches failed to reveal where the rescued passengers were being kept. Observers believed that it was either in German-held Africa or France.

EX-SHELBY MAN TAKES OWN LIFE

Tavern Proprietor Leaves Note For Divorced Wife.

A note, attached to an electric razor, the recent gift of his divorced wife, Ella, of Shelby, said: "Goodbye, Owen."

The body was brought to the Waters-Smith undertaking establishment here to await funeral arrangements.

APPROVES NEW SALARY PLAN

Board OK's Proposal Putting High and Grade Teachers on Equal Pay Basis.

teachers would be dropped from the staff next year, reducing the schools' operating costs enough to balance the added expense under the new salary plan.

The single-salary schedule will not apply to principals, supervisors, coaches, and Smith-Hughes vocational teachers whose salaries will be determined by the superintendent and board of education.

The new schedule sets the maximum salary for teachers at $2,100 a year for Senior high, Junior high and elementary schools. The present maximum is $2,100 for Senior high teachers, $1,800 in Junior high schools, and $1,700 in the elementary schools.

To earn the maximum pay a teacher must have a Master's degree and 20 years of teaching experience. Teachers now earning $2,100 a year and who do not have a Master's degree will continue to receive that amount until Aug. 31, 1944. If they still do not have their Master's degree, then their pay will be reduced to a maximum of $2,000. No teachers' salaries will be reduced next year, Miller said.

Grade teachers who do not have a degree will be limited to a maximum salary of $1,700 and other teachers in the school system who have not earned degrees will earn a maximum of $1,800.

Whether the annual increments under the plan shall be $25 or $50 depends upon the experience the teacher has and the present salary.

Except for a few minor changes the pay plan as approved by the board last night is the same as requested by a Teachers' association committee in March. The proposal has been studied by Supt. Miller and board members since then.

The new plan, the superintendent pointed out, places a premium on teaching experience and college training and will enable grade teachers in the schools to gain increases by attending summer school.

At a recent teachers meeting, 115 of 183 present voted for the single-salary plan, 61 voted for the present pay schedule with $50 increments, five disapproved either plan, and two did not vote.

Acting on a request of the Teachers' association, the board approved a plan whereby teachers who obtain a leave-of-absence to enter military service can count their year's leave as teaching experience so they will not lose the pay increase that otherwise would be due them under the new pay schedule.
